Rivers around Dhaka stay heavily polluted

Finds the latest study by DoE

PINAKI ROY

Rivers around Dhaka city remain seriously polluted despite some measures that have been taken over the years to curb water pollution, according to a recent study.

Solid wastes from polluting industries, municipal sewage and medical waste are polluting the rivers that surround major cities.

The level of DO of the Buriganga river went as low as 0.1 mg/l at Bosila point in April 2022 while it went up to 6.26 mg/l in the monsoon in July at the Bangladesh China Friendship Bridge. The monitoring involved field measurements and collecting water samples for laboratory analyses to a total of 12 parameters
